Tips for older travellers

Baby Boomers are gradually retiring but not wanting to put on the proverbial slippers just yet. Many remain in good health and travel is increasingly on the agenda. A popular pursuit is driving around Australia in a camper van or with a caravan.

It is a good idea to have a general health check with your GP before embarking. Part of this may include getting a printed summary of any medical conditions, current medications and allergies to take with you. Prescriptions can be filled at any chemist in Australia so there is no need to stock up. Neither do you need more than a basic first aid kit and medications (e.g. pain killers and antihistamines) that you would normally have at home. If you are going well off the beaten track, you will need to speak to your doctor.

People may forget that driving exposes the arms (especially the window side arm) to sunlight. If driving all day remember sunscreen. Travelling can be dehydrating so drink adequate water. Eating out every night can stack on the kilos so be watchful. Cook your own food whenever you can.

Sleep can be tricky when on the road. Relaxation apps can help get you off to sleep as can some herbal remedies. Sleeping tablets are best avoided. Do not drive when you're tired. It sounds obvious, but remember to take your Medicare card and private health membership card (where applicable). Let family know your itinerary and stay in regular contact with them.

Tennis Elbow

Lateral epicondylitis, inflammation of the tendons where they meet the bone at the elbow on the thumb side, is commonly called tennis elbow. It is not unique to tennis and can come about from any ongoing or repeated use of the forearm and wrist. Bricklaying, painting and gardening plus other racquet sports can bring it about as can using a computer mouse and it can affect anyone. It is commonest in those aged 35-55.

Pain can extend into the forearm and is worse with shaking hands, lifting or turning taps or doorknobs. Diagnosis is generally based on the description of symptoms and examination.

Typically, the bony point on the lateral (thumb) side of the elbow is tender. The pain is often reproduced on extension of the wrist against resistance. Sometimes imaging is helpful to define the extent of the condition or if it is not responsive to treatment.

First-line treatment is rest, ice packs and simple analgesia. A tennis elbow guard can help protect the area. Anti-inflammatory medication may be needed and physiotherapy can be helpful. Avoid activities which aggravate the situation. This can include changing technique especially if sport or work-related.

In some cases, a steroid injection can be recommended and, in rare instances, surgery. Your GP will advise you about treatment options.

Most people will make a full recovery and it is not of itself a recurrent condition nor a precursor to arthritis.

Managing coeliac disease

This is a condition where there is a marked immune response to gluten which is found in wheat, rye and barley. It can damage the small bowel and interfere with absorption of nutrients. The symptoms vary from mild to severe and include tiredness, intermittent diarrhoea, abdominal pain, bloating and flatulence. Children with coeliac disease may have slower growth, irritability and abdominal swelling.

It affects about 1% of the population though many are unaware they have the condition either because the symptoms are mild or they have put them down to other causes. It is a genetic condition and the main risk factor is having a first degree relative with it.

Accurate diagnosis is important as it is very manageable. Your GP can order blood tests, though a positive result is not absolute but a strong pointer. Definitive diagnosis is by a small bowel biopsy but not everyone wants or needs to have this done. A gluten challenge is another useful test.

There is no medication to take or 'cure'. However, symptoms can be easily controlled by avoiding gluten in the diet. Today there are many gluten-free foods. Neither adults nor children need to feel they are 'missing out' on foods they like.

There are many causes of the symptoms of coeliac disease so it is important to talk to your doctor and not rely on self-diagnosis or 'unorthodox' testing.

Cooling down heartburn

This is a burning pain in the chest or upper abdomen caused by acid leaking from the stomach into the oesophagus. It is also known as reflux and gastro-oesophageal reflux disease (GORD). It is very common and can affect all age groups from infancy. It ranges from mild to severe.

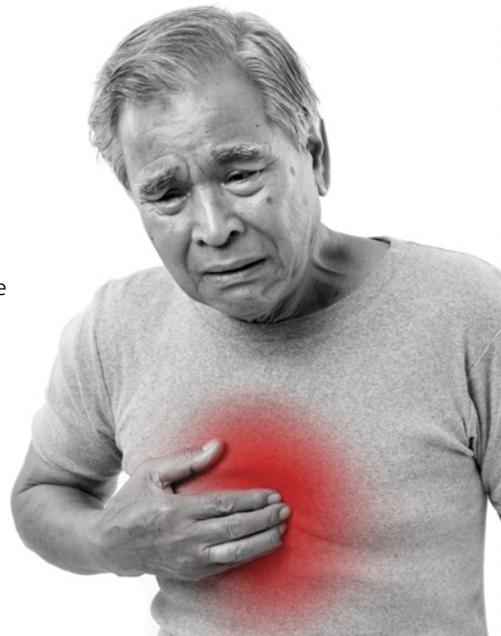

Not everyone with heartburn has GORD but those who do may have a hiatus hernia which is where some of the stomach 'slips' above the diaphragm.

In adults, risk factors include being overweight, smoking, alcohol consumption and a family history. Certain foods will trigger heartburn in certain people but there is no one set of foods to avoid. Caffeine, dairy and spicy foods are common culprits but each person needs to find what disagrees with them.

Prevention includes reducing known triggers and also not eating too much at one time. Treatment depends on severity and frequency. Simple home remedies such as bicarbonate of soda or herbal teas help some people. Simple antacids can also relieve symptoms. At night it can be helpful to sleep on a slight incline from head down to toes.

If simple approaches fail, you need to see your GP. Often the history is sufficient for diagnosis but you may be sent for tests to rule out other causes.

For ongoing problems there are prescription medications that can reduce acid production. Some people need short courses of these, others need it long term. If symptoms are not relieved after some weeks, you may be referred for a gastroscopy to assess the oesophagus and stomach.

Family break-ups and kids

It is estimated that 40% of marriages will end in divorce or separation. In many instances there are children and the impact on them is significant. Regardless of whether a couple love each other or not, their children will still love them both.

While all children are affected in the short term, American research shows in the longer term the vast majority of children in divorced families do as well as their peers when it comes to behaviour, academic performance and social relationships.

However, high levels of parental conflict is associated with poorer outcomes for children. This means it is less about parents separating and more about how it is managed. It also says that remaining together when there is ongoing conflict is not helpful either.

How children manifest this stress differs widely. Some children may develop night terrors or become anxious. Others may cry a lot. Those who are newly toilet trained may regress. Some children may complain of headaches or tummy aches. Some may lose appetite.

Children need the support of both parents and in turn parents also need support. There are many family services available. It is important to talk to your children honestly and listen to what they have to say. Allow them to express emotion and adjust to the circumstances in their own time.

Talk to your GP about any concerns you may have about your child or your own health.

Tips to protect your feet – from a Podiatrist.
Check both feet daily: Look over both feet carefully every day, and make sure you check between all of your toes. Look for skin damage, hard skin, the ball of the foot, places where bones stick out or where shoes or socks may rub. If it's difficult for you to check your own feet, ask a family member to help.

Wash with warm - not hot - water: Wash both of your feet briefly each day with warm - not hot - water. You may not be able to feel heat with your feet, so test the water with your hands first. Avoid soaking too long in water, since waterlogged sores take longer to heal. Dry your feet straight away, and remember to dry gently between all of your toes.

Make sure your shoes fit well: It's an investment worth making. Even the slightest rubbing or poorly fitting shoe can cause a blister that turns into a sore that becomes infected and may never heal. Buy better-fitting shoes, or try different socks, even at the most minor signs of redness or irritation, since you may not be able to feel when it's getting worse. Before buying or putting on the shoes check them for rough seams, sharp edges or other objects that could hurt your feet. In addition, break your shoes in gradually.
